

SLOAN ON VERGE OF GOING INSANE

Slayer of Wife and Son Nervous Wreck and May Lose Mind

VIEWS BODY OF WIFE

God, I Wish It Were Me, He Cries Out Looking at Remains of Mate

Special to The World. KAPLPA, Jan. 26.—Practically a nervous wreck E. H. Sloan, oil well engineer, who Tuesday afternoon shot his wife, then shot and killed his four-year-old son and later attempted to take his own life at his home near Chick, Tuesday, was on the verge of collapse and hysteria in the county jail today. Menusly fagged from brooding over the tragedy Sloan was unable to give a coherent statement regarding the occurrence, and in fact talked to no one but his employer Lee H. McClung, but what little talking he did corroborated his signed statement to Assistant County Attorney Wagner.

Sloan claims his wife was accidentally killed while he scuffled with her for the possession of a revolver. He says he then killed his son rather than let another motherless child be born. Sloan, who turned the gun on his own head to commit suicide, but the patrol jammed and wouldn't fire. Wagner believes Sloan is in a very nervous condition and while he does not believe he will go insane it is not improbable, he said. "Even now it is impossible for him to talk with any degree of sense."

Wagner said that no specific charges of murder had yet been filed against Sloan and that none would be until after the funeral of his wife and son. Only one charge will be preferred against him—that of murdering his four-year-old boy. The man admits his guilt and says he will plead guilty.

"I am going to accept whatever the court decrees," Sloan said. "All I ask is that they hurry up my trial."

Sloan always has been of a nervous temperament, according to McClung, his employer. When his wife slapped him with the dish towel it made him angry and no doubt at the moment was insane, McClung said.

The bullet that killed Mrs. Sloan passed from the right to the left side of her head and officials say Sloan must have had the pistol in his hand when it was discharged.

FOR A FARM EXCHANGE

Establishment of State Marketing Exchange Favored by the Farmers Union.

By Associated Press State Wire. OKLAHOMA CITY, Jan. 26.—Establishment of a state marketing exchange to be handled under the supervision of the executive council of the Oklahoma Farmers' union, was approved at a meeting of the union here today. More than a hundred farmers were present. Following the reading of a tentative plan for such an exchange, the executive council went into session to perfect by-laws.

Without confusion and resultant failure would follow lack of cooperation by local union over the state, it was declared by John Simpson, president of the union, who presided. The plan, as outlined, would consist of an office in Oklahoma City and the office acting as a clearing house for farm crops and produce. This would prevent congestion of products at certain points, it was explained.

C. H. Hyde of Atoka said he had federal trade commission reports showing that the cost of coal at the mines in Oklahoma, after being loaded on cars, was $5.15 a ton for the last two years. He expressed the belief that under the new system of marketing, whereby the state office could purchase coal for locals over its entire territory, the price would be cut in half.

The meeting expressed approval of the farmers' warehouse bill before the legislature.
